Dear Ann-Michèle Wieleman,

I am writing with genuine enthusiasm about the "AI-Veranderingscoördinator" position at ACV. This role feels like it was written for me. Above all, I am looking for a job that contributes to society and gives me a sense of purpose. ACV's commitment to defending workers is very important in our society, which I can personally confirm as a member of ACV. Companies are big and more powerful, and on the other side is an individual worker. In healthy society there has to be a counter balance for these powerful companies, one that will defend their sometimes fragile individual employees.

Work with purpose and a social impact is also something I have looked for in the past in multiple roles. An example is at VGC, my task was to architect, develop and implement solutions to support schools. But also to help teachers and students to discover more modern teaching and learning tools.

I am a lifelong tech enthusiast with AI being at the forefront of my current endeavours. My hyper-curious nature drives me to constantly learn and experiment with new (AI) technologies. With my open personality, I embrace not only new technology but also new ideas. I love discovering them, experimenting with them, critically evaluating them, and most importantly, applying (AI) technologies to create more efficient work environments and better customer experiences and work experiences.

I'm also deeply curious about how organizations and their customers operate what they do, how they do it, and what tasks they perform, to ultimately identify how (AI) technologies can improve these processes. Using technology to improve work environments has been a core motivator in all my tech jobs, and I have been part of many projects to improve not only the work environment but also the customer experience and also the work experience.

I also love inspiring people with modern technology, as it can often contribute significantly to their life and or work experience. My enthusiasm helps me convince others to embrace new technologies like AI. Even my social circle can testify to this, as I often encourage peers to use tools like ChatGPT.

I am confident that my passion for both AI and the meaningful social role that ACV plays in society, makes me an ideal candidate for this position. I would welcome the opportunity to discuss how my enthusiasm and expertise could contribute to ACV. I look forward to the possibility of meeting with ACV to further elaborate on how I can help drive positive change as your AI-Veranderingscoördinator.

Thank you for considering my application.

Sincerely,

Gerrit Geeraerts
